Last Meeting, November 14, 2019:

Fred Lacy describes a whole lot of uses for an ordinary covering heat gun. Obviously activating thermal glue on film covering, but also removing large sheets of covering with a bit more heat. Also the heat destroys epoxy to the point parts so bonded can be easily cleaned and reused.

Tony Naef describes the politics and comedy of errors in building a display model of a Boeing 777 that mounts on a spinning Earth globe for a parade float.

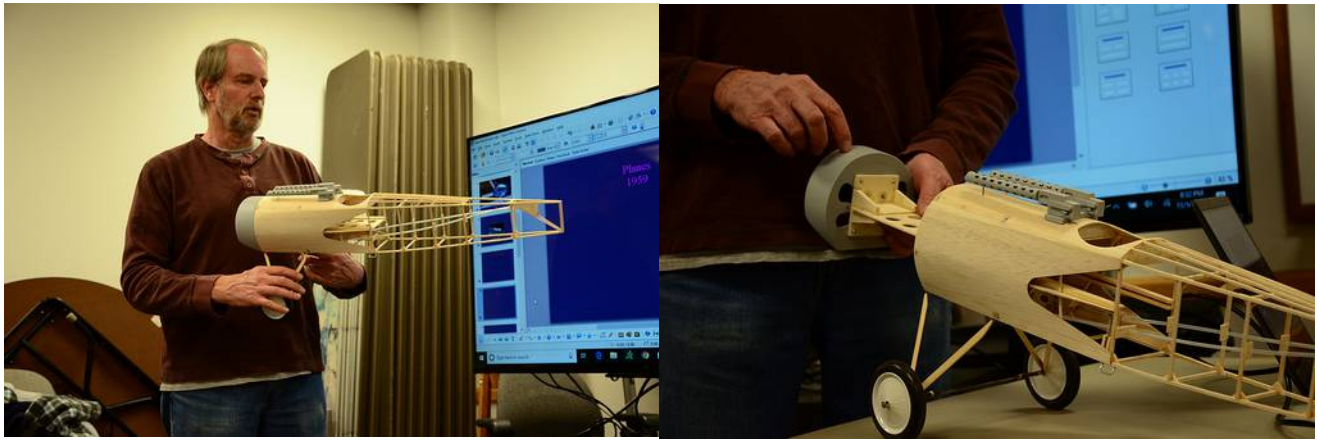

Ed Stimpson presented some possible Winter and Spring flying sites near our field at Lake Point that could be used when our regular field is too muddy. Details are posted on the club website at: <http://uterc.org/node/1984>

Steve Wilson and Keith Hiatt preside at the meeting.

Rick Marshall describes some of the details of the Fokker D-VIII, including a slide in motor & battery tray that is locked by the scale step below cockpit on left side. The tray allows positioning the battery pack to adjust the CG of the plane when finished.

Fuselage of Rick Marshall's model of the Fokker D-VIII of WW I.
